Office of the Attorney General Identity Theft Victim's Kit

This Identity Theft Victim's Kit can help you with the process of recovering from the identity crime committed against you. While the recovery process can be long and at times frustrating, this kit outlines six specific steps to take and provides vital contact information you will need to address the effects of identity theft.

Your stolen identity may be used in several ways. A criminal might assume your identity in order to gain employment, open bank or credit accounts, or even to evade criminal prosecution. Regardless of how your stolen identity is misused, you should take action immediately. The less time criminals have with your identity, the less damage they can do to your reputation and credit.

State law prohibits the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) from acting as an attorney on behalf of an individual citizen. In some instances, you may want to seek the personal advice of a private attorney. The OAG does accept consumer complaints and provides general information about identity theft. Please visit our Web site or contact the agency if you have questions regarding this kit.

Task Checklist

This checklist will help you keep track of your progress as you begin to clear your name. Remember: The less time a criminal has with your identity, the less damage he or she can do to your reputation and credit. You should finish all the tasks described below as quickly as possible.

Remember to keep notes of all your phone calls, including the name, date and time of each conversation you have while trying to clear your name. You will find a call log at the end of this kit.

- Step 1 Stop ongoing damage to your credit. Close all bank, credit, utility and service accounts that have been fraudulently opened or compromised. Contact the three major credit bureaus and request that a fraud alert or security freeze be placed on your credit report to stop new accounts from being fraudulently opened in your name.
- Step 2 Report identity theft crime to your local law enforcement and request a copy of the police report.
- Step 3 Report identity theft crime to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and complete the FTC's ID Theft Affidavit.
- Step 4 Prevent or curtail further identity theft abuses by contacting other relevant law enforcement or government agencies.
- Step 5 Monitor your credit report on an ongoing basis to prevent continued identity theft abuses. If debt collectors harass you as a result of identity theft, file a consumer complaint with the Office of the Attorney General.
- Step 6 If necessary, complete an Application Requesting Declaration that Applicant is a Victim of Identity Theft, which is included in this ID Theft Victim's Kit, and file it with a Texas state district court.

Step 1

Stop Ongoing Damage to Your Credit

Close all bank, credit, utility and service accounts that have been fraudulently opened or compromised. Request that a fraud alert or security freeze be placed on your credit report to stop new accounts from being fraudulently opened in your name.

- ▶ Immediately close all accounts that you know were used by a thief or that you suspect have been compromised.
- ▶ Make a list of all your bank, credit, utility and service accounts.
- ▶ Get a copy of your credit report and check to see that all accounts shown on the report are accounts which you authorized and that their related information is accurate (such as current balances).
- ▶ Close any unauthorized accounts that appear on your credit report.
- ▶ Contact credit bureaus to request that a fraud alert or security freeze be placed on your credit report.

Closing Accounts

The sooner you detect a problem, the less it can harm you. If you know about a specific account that an identity thief has used or has information about, your first step should be to immediately close that account.

In certain cases - such as, if someone finds your lost wallet and begins to use one of the credit cards it contains - assume that all your accounts are at risk and close them immediately.

To stay organized, make a list of all your bank accounts, credit cards, utilities and service providers and their contact information. Using this list as a guide, contact each institution and explain that you are an identity theft victim and ask to close the account. Most institutions will close the compromised account and issue a new account number with no penalty to you.

Step 1

After contacting all the companies by phone, follow up by mailing them letters stating the date on which you called each one to tell them you might be a victim of identity theft and indicating that you asked, and the company agreed, to close the account and assign it a new number. Your letter should also detail other specific steps that the company agreed to take on your behalf.

Obtaining a Fraud Alert

After you have closed accounts so that the thieves can no longer use them, take immediate action to prevent them from opening NEW accounts in your name.

First, contact any of the credit bureaus listed at the end of this section and ask them to place a fraud alert on your file. Once this fraud alert is placed on your report, all new creditors who receive a copy of your credit report or credit score will know that you do not authorize the opening of a new account, issuance of a new credit card, or an increase in a credit limit unless the creditor first takes reasonable measures to confirm that the request is truly authorized by you. When requesting a fraud alert, indicate a telephone number where you can be contacted to provide verbal authorization before new lines of credit are issued in your name.

To obtain this alert, also called an “initial fraud alert,” call the credit bureau by phone and tell them you believe you have been or may become a victim of fraud or identity theft. This initial alert lasts for 90 days. If you find out that you no longer need the fraud alert, you can call the credit bureau again and terminate it. Even though the law does not require that you request this type of alert in writing, it’s always a good idea to follow up your telephone call to the credit bureau with a certified letter, return receipt requested, reiterating your request to have a fraud alert placed on your file. To ensure that all three credit reporting agencies place the alert on your file, mail a copy of your letter to each agency.

Free Credit Report

Placing a fraud alert on your credit report entitles you to receive a free copy of the report from each credit reporting agency. If it is not offered to you, request it.

Once you receive your report, compare the list of accounts that you previously made with the list of accounts shown on your credit report. If any unfamiliar accounts appear on your credit report, notify that creditor immediately, close the account and dispute the charges. Explain that the account may have been opened without your knowledge by an identity thief. Send a letter to the same effect to the credit reporting agency and request that the information regarding the fraudulent account be permanently removed from your record.

Limitations of a Fraud Alert

Be aware that a fraud alert notifies creditors who access your credit file that you may be a victim of identity theft, but it does NOT prohibit them from accessing your report or from issuing new credit in your name. Therefore, consider asking the credit reporting agencies to place a “security freeze” on your credit file. When this freeze is added to your report, all third parties, such as credit lenders or other companies (whose use is not exempt under law) will be unable to access your credit report without your permission. Once you place a freeze on your file, you will need to remove or temporarily lift the freeze anytime you want to apply for credit. Each credit reporting agency has its own process and fee for initiating and lifting a security freeze, so you should contact them individually.

A security freeze can be placed free of charge if you have reported the identity crime committed against you to the police and have a copy of the police report. Without such a report, credit bureaus can charge up to $10 each for you to place or lift a freeze. In the next step, you will find out how to report incidences of identity theft to law enforcement and how to obtain a police report.

Step 2

Report Identity Theft Crime to Your Local Law Enforcement Agency

1. Report the crime to your local law enforcement agency.
2. Ask for a copy of the police report and case number.

Most creditors require you to provide a police report when you contest fraudulent charges. Therefore, you must report the crime to your local police or sheriff's department and obtain a copy of the corresponding police report. Even if you do not know who used your information or if your information was used in another state, you can file a complaint with local law enforcement.

Under Chapter 32.51 of the Penal Code, the venue for reporting identity crime is the city or county of residence of the person whose identity was stolen or any county in which an offense was committed. The Texas Identity Theft Enforcement and Protection Act requires peace officers to create a written report and provide a copy of it whenever a person living in their jurisdiction alleges being a victim of identity crime.

Be prepared. Some police departments have special complaint forms to report identity theft. These forms can be obtained online or through the departments' offices. Others will take complaints by phone. Be prepared to tell and show the investigator why you believe you are a victim of identity theft. The more evidence you can give your assigned investigator, the more readily he or she can create a police report for you. Make sure that you ask for a copy of the report. Texas law provides that you are entitled to a copy of it, provided you request it.

Remember to keep the original police report in your files and make extra copies so that you can send them to creditors who request it. Also, remember that an identity theft victim who has a police report can request and lift a security freeze for free, so having this report will save you money.

ID Theft Affidavit

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Instructions for Completing the ID Theft Affidavit

To make certain that you do not become responsible for any debts incurred by an identity thief, you must prove to each of the companies where accounts were opened or used in your name that you didn't create the debt. A group of credit grantors, consumer advocates, and attorneys at the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) developed an ID Theft Affidavit to make it easier for fraud victims to report information. While many companies accept this affidavit, others require that you submit more or different forms. Before you send the affidavit, contact each company to find out if they accept it. It will be necessary to provide the information in this affidavit anywhere a new account was opened in your name. The information will enable the companies to investigate the fraud and decide the outcome of your claim. If someone made unauthorized charges to an existing account, call the company for instructions. This affidavit has two parts:

- Part One – the ID Theft Affidavit – is where you report general information about yourself and the theft.
- Part Two – the Fraudulent Account Statement – is where you describe the fraudulent account(s) opened in your name.

Use a separate Fraudulent Account Statement for each company you need to write to. When you send the affidavit to the companies, attach copies (NOT originals) of any supporting documents (for example, driver's license or police report). Before submitting your affidavit, review the disputed account(s) with family members or friends who may have information about the account(s) or access to them. Complete this affidavit as soon as possible. Many creditors ask that you send it within two weeks. Delays on your part could slow the investigation.

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Be as accurate and complete as possible. You may choose not to provide some of the information requested. However, incorrect or incomplete information will slow the process of investigating your claim and absolving the debt. Print clearly. When you have finished completing the affidavit, mail a copy to each creditor, bank, or company that provided the thief with the unauthorized credit, goods, or services you describe.

Attach a copy of the Fraudulent Account Statement with information only on accounts opened at the institution to which you are sending the packet, as well as any other supporting documentation you are able to provide.

Send the appropriate documents to each company by certified mail, return receipt requested, so you can prove that it was received.

The companies will review your claim and send you a written response telling you the outcome of their investigation.

Keep a copy of everything you submit.

If you are unable to complete the affidavit, a legal guardian or someone with power of attorney may complete it for you.

Except as noted, the information you provide will be used only by the company to process your affidavit, investigate the events you report and help stop further fraud.

If this affidavit is requested in a lawsuit, the company might have to provide it to the requesting party.

Completing this affidavit does not guarantee that the identity thief will be prosecuted or that the debt will be cleared.

DO NOT SEND AFFIDAVIT TO THE FTC OR ANY OTHER GOVERNMENT AGENCY

ID Theft Victim's Kit

If you haven't done so, report the fraud to the following organizations:

Credit Bureaus

1. Any one of the nationwide credit bureaus to place a fraud alert on your credit report. Fraud alerts can help prevent an identity thief from opening any more accounts in your name. The credit bureau you call is required to contact the other two, which will place an alert on their versions of your report, too.

- Experian (888) EXPERIAN (397-3742)
www.experian.com
- TransUnion (800) 680-7289
www.transunion.com

In addition to placing the fraud alert, the three consumer reporting companies will send you free copies of your credit reports, and, if you ask, they will display only the last four digits of your Social Security number on your credit reports.

Security or Fraud Department

2. The security or fraud department of each major credit bureaus where you know, or believe, accounts have been tampered with or opened fraudulently. Close the accounts. Follow up in writing, and include copies (NOT originals) of supporting documents. It's important to notify credit card companies and banks in writing. Send your letters by certified mail, return receipt requested, so you can document what the company received and when. Keep a file of your correspondence and enclosures. When you open new accounts, use new Personal Identification Numbers (PINs) and passwords. Avoid using easily available information like your mother's maiden name, your birth date, the last four digits of your Social Security number or your phone number, or a series of consecutive numbers.

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Local Law Enforcement

3. Your local police or the police in the community where the identity theft took place to file a report. Get a copy of the police report or, at the very least, the number of the report. It can help you deal with creditors who need proof of the crime. If the police are reluctant to take your report, ask to file a "Miscellaneous Incidents" report, or try another jurisdiction, like your state police. You also can check with your state Attorney General's office to find out if state law requires the police to take reports for identity theft. Check the Blue Pages of your telephone directory for the phone number or check www.naag.org for a list of state attorneys general.

Federal Trade Commission

4. The Federal Trade Commission. By sharing your identity theft complaint with the FTC, you will provide important information that can help law enforcement officials across the nation track down and stop identity thieves. The FTC also can refer victims' complaints to other government agencies and companies for further action as well as investigate companies for violations of laws that the FTC enforces.

You can file a complaint online at www.consumer.gov/idtheft.

If you don't have Internet access, call the FTC's Identity Theft Hotline, toll-free: (877) IDTHEFT (438-4338); TTY: (866) 653-4261; or write:

- Local Texas Department of Public Safety Driver License Office
- Social Security Administration (SSA)
- Internal Revenue Service (IRS)
- U.S. Postal Inspection Service
- U.S. Passport Agency

An identity thief might use your personal information to fraudulently obtain a driver's license, file for bankruptcy, apply for Social Security benefits or even get a passport. To head off such possibilities, contact the following agencies and follow their procedures to prevent an identity thief from using your personal information in this manner.

Texas Department of Public Safety Driver License Office

The Department of Public Safety (DPS) can check its database to determine the last time a driver's license was issued in your name. If a license was issued after the last time you obtained one for yourself, immediately report that fraud to DPS. Your local driver's license office will determine the best course of action for your individual situation. To find the location of the nearest driver's license office, contact DPS by telephone or visit the agency's Web site.

Social Security Administration

If you believe your Social Security number has been compromised, immediately contact the Social Security Administration. Order a copy of your Personal Earnings and Benefits Estimate Statement (PEBES) and compare it to your work history. If you notice any employers or earnings you do not recognize, someone might be using your Social Security number for employment. Report any discrepancies to the Social Security Administration's Office of the Inspector General.

In extraordinary circumstances, the Social Security Administration may change your Social Security number. However, changing your number will be done only as a last resort when a very specific set of criteria have been met. Contact the Social Security Administration to determine the best course of action for you.

Internal Revenue Service

If you believe an identity thief has used your Social Security number to fraudulently file for a tax refund or has compromised your taxes, contact your local Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Taxpayer Assistance Center. IRS personnel will help you determine what damage has been done to your tax record and help you determine the steps to correct the problem.

Credit Report Contact Information

Monitor Your Credit Report to Thwart Continued Identity Theft Abuses

Each of the three major consumer credit card bureaus is required to provide you with one free copy of your credit report per year. You can use these free credit reports as a tool to monitor your financial well-being. If you find an account on your credit report that you did not open, contact the creditor. To request your free credit reports, call or write the Annual Credit Report Request Service or visit their Web site.

Keep track of the dates on which important documents such as bills, financial statements and insurance papers normally arrive at your home. If any of these documents are late, contact the sender and find out why. An identity thief can re-route your mail to another address to hide criminal activity. Remember to keep up with the fraud alert or security freeze you requested from credit bureaus. If necessary, renew the fraud alert when it expires (usually every 90 days) or initiate a security freeze.

You might also be contacted by a debt collector about an account that you disputed because of identity theft. If that happens, dispute the debt in writing with the debt collector. If the collector continues to contact you or harasses you or your family, file a complaint with the Office of the Attorney General by calling (800) 252-8011 or going online at www.texasattorneygeneral.gov.

2. File the application with your district court and request a hearing date.
3. Appear in court on the specified date and submit evidence proving you are a victim of identity theft.

As you work to clear your name, you may find it necessary to obtain a court order declaring that you are a victim of identity theft. This is allowed under the Texas Identity Theft Enforcement and Protection Act, found in Chapter 48 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code. If you are granted this type of court order, you may submit it to governmental entities and private businesses to help correct any records that contain inaccurate or false information which resulted from the identity theft.

The Office of the Attorney General has prepared a do-it-yourself application for a court order, which you can complete and file with your state district court. Necessary forms and instructions can be downloaded from the OAG Identity Theft Web site www.texasfightsidtheft.gov or by calling (800) 252-8011.

You may file these forms in state district court on your own behalf, but you are strongly encouraged to hire an attorney to help you with this process. Instructions for Preparing & Filing the Application for a Court Order

Before you begin to fill out the court order application, take time to review and copy it. Also, it will be much easier for you to fill out the application if you first gather relevant documents such as copies of identity theft complaints that you have filed and information reflecting account numbers, transactions and events in which you were a victim of identity theft. For your convenience, each of the following instructions corresponds to a specific section or paragraph of the court order application:

Instruction for filling out the top of the application:

At the top of the application, under the "IN THE MATTER OF" heading, fill in your full name since you are the identity theft victim who is filing this application. Also, fill in the name of the county where you live since that is where you will be filing this application. To file your application, you will go to the office of the district clerk at your county courthouse. There the clerk will give you a "Cause number" and "Judicial district" numbers to fill in the remaining blanks.

Instruction for paragraph 1:

Enter your full name.

Instruction for paragraph 2:

In this paragraph you are telling the court which portions of your personal information (for example, Social Security or driver's license numbers) were used without your approval. Check each and every box that applies to your circumstances.

Instruction for paragraph 3:

In this paragraph you are providing information to the court regarding whether you filed an identity theft complaint with a law enforcement agency and telling the court where and when you filed such a complaint or complaints. Remember that the judge will later have a hearing to consider your application and at that time you will need to present a copy of each such complaint to the judge.

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Instruction for paragraph 4:

In this paragraph you are providing information to the court regarding the status of any identity theft criminal complaints you have filed. If you do not know what has happened as a result of your filing a complaint, you may need to contact the law enforcement agency where you filed to find out what has happened as a result of your complaint, including whether or not they have been able to identify the person or persons who used your information. Based on what they tell you, you will check ONLY the boxes that fit your circumstances. Also, fill in the date that law enforcement provided you with the information that you include in this paragraph.

Instruction for paragraph 5:

At the beginning of this paragraph, enter the date that you fill out the application. In this paragraph, you are telling the court about each type of unauthorized transaction in which your name or other information was used without your authorization (for example, an unauthorized transaction establishing a utility account using your name). Only check those boxes which generally reflect transactions or events in which your information was used without your permission. If your information was used in a way that is not already described, there are blank spaces provided at the end of paragraph five where you can explain specifics of what happened in your case.

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Instruction for paragraphs 6,7,8,& 9:

Read these paragraphs carefully. They explain that this application does not include specific information (such as your account numbers) in order to protect the confidentiality of that information but that you understand that when the court holds a hearing on your application, you will be prepared to present evidence of each of the unauthorized transactions which you listed in this application. Because the law requires the court to enter specific findings, for each account or transaction that you checked off in paragraph five, you will need to have the following information and related documents to present when you appear before the court: (1) the name of the institution, merchant or business where information was used without your authorization; (2) any relevant account numbers; (3) the dollar amount of the accounts or transactions affected; (4) the date or dates that your information was used without your authorization; and (5) information you may have (if any) identifying the person or persons who used your personal identifying information.

Instruction for the signature block at the end:

You must sign this application and include your printed name, complete mailing address and telephone number. Be sure to provide a correct address and telephone listing because this is how the court's staff will contact you. Failure to accept delivery or pick up mail addressed to you is generally treated by the courts as if you received that mail.

Preparing Exhibits

ID Theft Victim's Kit

Instructions for Preparing Exhibits

The Identity Theft Enforcement and Protection Act requires the judge who holds the hearing to consider your application and make very specific findings regarding each financial account or transaction which your application states was affected by identity theft. You can use the Exhibit form to help you prepare for the hearing and to assist the judge in understanding your facts and entering these specific findings. Thus, you should make several copies of the blank exhibit form and fill one out for every instance of identity theft you will present to the court. To assist you in preparation, attach to each exhibit, copies of any documents which you will ask the judge to review. The judge will then be able to review each exhibit together with any documents and testimony you present regarding such exhibit. The judge will then decide as to each exhibit whether you have been a victim of identity theft. If the judge agrees with you that a particular exhibit and the evidence you present demonstrate you are a true victim of identity theft with respect to the particular matter represented in the Exhibit, the judge will attach that exhibit to any final order entered by the court. The judge may decide to attach one, none or all of the exhibits you prepare to the final order. The judge may also elect to modify these exhibits as well as the proposed order that is part of this package to fit your specific circumstances. As required by state law, the Order and all of the Exhibits attached by the judge will be sealed and not open to the public.
